

Women In Islam* – Content and Style Guide

---

Editorial board

The Editorial board is composed of:

- Hala Alkarib, Regional Director, SIHA
- Celia Hitzges, Editorial Coordinator, SIHA
- Faith James, Programme Development and Advocacy Associate, SIHA
- Waha Ibrahim, Regional Assistant, SIHA
- Olive Nazziwa, Communications Assistant, SIHA

Audience

Women in Islam is intended for a readership of:

- Women's rights activists and advocates looking for accessible, progressive knowledge and arguments to support their work;
- Muslim women looking for content that reflect their realities and provides a complex, multi-faceted picture of Muslim women in Africa and across the world;
- Educators and students with an interest in the topics of justice and gender equality in Muslim societies.

Description and general information

Published by the Strategic Initiative for Women in the Horn of Africa (SIHA) – a regional network of civil society organisations – Women In Islam explores the complexities of gender relations in Muslim communities in the Horn of Africa and beyond, engaging critically with conflicting perceptions of Islam in relation to women's rights and equality. It promotes alternative and progressive discourses on Islamic traditions and texts and reflects on the lived realities and current challenges faced by Muslim societies. Published annually in both Arabic and English, and with an artistic and innovative approach to scholarship, Women In Islam is interested in publishing original content which uses a gender lens to highlight important social justice issues faced by both historical and contemporary followers of Islam. Submission types include: 1) original research articles and essays, 2) book, film or exhibition reviews, 3) personal narratives and dialogues, 4) photo essays (and other forms of visual media), and 5) poetry, and creative nonfiction.

1) Original research articles and essays are welcome in any area of relevance to the progressive goals of Women In Islam. We encourage authors to submit short, concise articles up to 3,000 words, including references as well as the main text. Papers which exceed this limit will be considered on a case-by-case basis.

2) Book, film or exhibition reviews may be solicited directly by the Editorial Coordinator or suggested by potential reviewers. If you would like to suggest a review, please send a short email to the Editorial Coordinator (Celia Hitzges, editorwomeninislam@gmail.com) introducing your idea. Reviews which highlight the writing, directing and art of women are particularly encouraged. Reviews are typically between 1,000-1,500 words in length.

3) Personal narratives and dialogues (first-person interviews) with religious scholars, academics, activists, artists, and other experts of interest to Women In Islam's readers. Individuals wishing to undertake a personal narrative or dialogue are encouraged to contact the Editorial Coordinator with a brief proposal that outlines the expert you wish to engage, and the types of questions you seek to ask. Please note that for self-written (autobiographical) narratives, the narrator should be listed as author. Dialogues (first-person interviews) are jointly authored by the interviewer and interviewee(s). Narratives and dialogues are typically between 1,500 -2,000 words in length.

4) Photo essays (and other forms of visual media), with between 6-10 images and brief accompanying text, are encouraged to provide an illustrative, critical perspective on the power of visual work to creatively educate and inform the readers of Women In Islam.

5) Poetry and creative nonfiction which provides thought-provoking responses to issues of concern to Women In Islam, as well as raising new questions about the state of contemporary poetry/writing. We do not want to limit author's creativity with strict writing guidelines, however, when it comes to what we publish, we encourage author's to read through our previous issues to get a sense of the type of work Women In Islam typically publishes. Though not mandatory, poetry submissions in this category are usually less than 500 words, and nonfiction submissions are typically between 1,000-1,500 words in length.

Review process and decision timeline

Each submission will be reviewed first by the Editorial Coordinator, and if appropriate sent to one peer reviewer. Our aim is to complete this process and render an editorial decision (accept, minor revisions, major revisions, reject) within 8–10 weeks of the initial submission. However, due to increased workloads of peer reviewers, this timeline is not guaranteed.

Decisions

Initial decisions issued by the Editorial Board will fall into one of four categories: 1) accept (the submission will be published, however minor copy edits may be made by the editorial staff), 2) minor revisions (submission requires minor changes by the author prior to acceptance), 3) major revisions (submission requires substantial improvement prior to acceptance), and 4) reject (the journal will not publish the submission).

Once a manuscript is accepted, authors will work with the editorial staff on initial copyediting, including editing for length, clarity and content. Final revisions must conform to Women In Islam's 'Guide for authors' (see below), or they will be returned. The editorial staff may enlist an external copyeditor for an additional level of review. Authors will receive e-proofs from the publisher along with queries and corrections approximately six weeks before the issue is published. They should take this opportunity to carefully proof their article as this will be their last chance to make any changes, although no major rewriting will be allowed at this point. Both copyediting and proofreading must be completed in a timely manner to meet publication deadlines. Prior to publication, the author must complete the Author Agreement Form, which will be sent to the author directly via email from the Editorial Coordinator.

Authors who receive minor revision or major revision decisions are encouraged to resubmit their manuscripts within one month for full consideration. While we endeavor to secure the same peer reviewers for the revised manuscripts, this is not always possible. When submitting a revised manuscript, authors should include: 1) a detailed cover letter describing how they have addressed requested revisions, 2) a clean, revised .doc or .docx version of their submission (for text submissions), and 3) an anonymized TrackChanges version of their submission (for text submissions) to indicate where edits were made.

For authors who receive a rejection decision, the editorial staff will not review the submission further, even if it is substantially revised.

General text style

All text submissions should use Ariel font, 12-point size, left justified, 1.5 spacing, with notes and references appearing as footnotes, following The Chicago Manual of Style. Footnotes should appear in Ariel font, 10-point size, left justified, and single spacing. English submissions should follow UK spelling conventions (e.g. 'centre' and 'marginalised'). Arabic submissions should follow Modern Standard Arabic spelling conventions.

Headings should appear using the following style:

Headings

Headings, both for article titles and within the main text, should follow the guidelines listed below (see table as example). Please note that the heading style within this guide follows these recommended heading conventions:

- Maintain consistency and parallel structure in headings and subheads
- Subheadings should begin on a new line
- Levels of subheads are differentiated by placement on the page, use of boldface, italics, and underlining
- Subheadings should not be distinguished by font-size
- Ensure that each level of hierarchy is clear and consistent
- No more than three levels of hierarchy are strongly recommended for most submission types
- Avoid ending subheadings with periods

Level	Format
1: Article title	Centered, Boldface, Title Case Heading
2: In-text (Header 1)	Flush Left, Boldface, Title case heading
3: In-text (Header 2)	Flush left, Underlined, Title case heading
4: In-text (Header 3)	Indented, Italicized, Title case heading
5: In-text (Header 4)	Indented, Underlined, Title case heading

Reference style

All notes and references should appear as sequential, numerical footnotes at the end of the same page in which the note/reference is cited. The citation style should follow The Chicago Manual of Style 'Notes' (for entries upon first use) and 'Shortened notes' (for all subsequent entries after first use). Any submission which uses in-text notes and references must conform to this style. Please ensure that every reference cited in the text, is also present in the reference list (and vice versa). Avoid citation in the abstract.

Loanwords, foreign words and transliteration

Foreign words accepted in English usage should be spelled in accordance with the Oxford English Dictionary or the Concise Oxford Dictionary. Other foreign words not found here should follow the Arabic Romanization Table. For ease of reference, Women In Islam additionally includes below our preferred spelling for commonly used transliterated words:

- Qur'an
- madrassa
- hadith
- wahhabism
- shari'ah
- salafi
- sunnah
- masjid

Transliterated words need to be italicized upon first use in an article. All subsequent uses of the same word should not be italicized. In general, transliterated words from Arabic to English do not have to be capitalized (e.g. shari'ah, not Shari'ah) There are exceptions to this when writing the name for a proper noun (e.g. Qur'an), or when the word appears first in a sentence (e.g. "Shari'ah law states..."). When citing specific passages from the Qur'an or hadith, in-text citations should include the number of the chapter and of the verse (where relevant). An example of such a citation would look like this: (Qur'an, 15:25), with 15 being the chapter, and 25 being the verse.

All Islamic titles should be capitalized when used before a name (e.g. Grand Mufti Muhammad Hussein) and lowercase otherwise (e.g. Muhammad Hussein, a grant mufti appointed by the president). Use the title and first and last name on first reference, and only the person's last name after that. This format all applies to non-Islamic title holders as well (i.e. use of first and last name on first reference, and only the person's last name after that).

How to submit

Contributions to Women In Islam are accepted year-round. All submissions must be emailed to: editorwomeninislam@gmail.com. Your email subject line should be titled using the following naming convention: 'TYPE OF ARTICLE_DATE OF SUBMISSION_AUTHOR LAST NAME'. For example, submission of an original research article on 6 July 2020 by Hira Hasan would appear with the following subject line: 'ORIGINAL RESEARCH ARTICLE_6JULY2020_HASAN.'

Submission type: Guide for authors

Original research articles and essays

All original research article and essay submissions must include:

- Title Page. This document should include the following:
  - Author Information: Include your name, affiliation, and email. In the case of multiple authors, be sure to identify who the corresponding author will be by using an asterisk (*).
  - Article Title: We encourage authors to include important keywords (ideally within the first 65 characters) and to keep titles short.
  - Abstract: (<100 words) Describe essential findings and keywords in the first two sentences. Avoid parenthetical citations in your abstract.

- Author Bio: (<50 words) If including current institutional affiliation, education, positions held, and/or relevant publications, please describe in narrative form.
- Article/essay submission. (3,000 words, including footnotes and references following The Chicago Manual of Style). All references should appear as sequential, numerical footnotes at the end of the same page in which the reference is cited. The citation style should follow The Chicago Manual of Style 'Notes' (for entries upon first use) and 'Shortened notes' (for all subsequent entries after first use).

Book, film or exhibition reviews

Follow the 'formatting your review' instructions below. All review submissions must include:

- Title Page. This document should include the following:
  - Author Information: Include your name, affiliation, and email. In the case of multiple authors, be sure to identify who the corresponding author will be by using an asterisk (*).
  - Author Bio: (<50 words) If including current institutional affiliation, education, positions held, and/or relevant publications, please describe in narrative form.
- Formatting your review. (1,000-1,500 words).
  - Books. Title (of the work reviewed) in bold, centred. On a new line list the author or editor, the place of publication, the press and the date, followed by a period. On a new line list your name in italics, your affiliation and the location of your affiliation on the next line. For example:

Women and gender in Islam: Historical roots of a modern debate

Authored by Leila Ahmed, New Haven: Yale University Press, 1993.

Aisha Afghani
University of Khartoum, Sudan

- Films. Title (of the work reviewed) in bold, centred. On a new line list the film's director, the year it was made, its length, its distributor and the distributor's contact information, followed by a period. On a new line list your name in italics, your affiliation and the location of your affiliation on the next line. For example:

Karama has no walls

Directed by Sara Ishaq, 2013, 26 minutes, color. Distributed by The Cinema Guild, www.cinemaguild.com.

Jehane Labaki
Cairo University, Egypt

- Exhibitions. Title (of the work reviewed) in bold, centred, which should include the full exhibition title in italics with quotation marks OR just the title of the exhibition in bold and italicized with quotation marks. On a new line list the curator, other relevant artists/makers, the dates of its run, its physical location, and URL (if any), followed by a period. On a new line list your name in italics, your affiliation and the location of your affiliation on the next line. For example:

Contemporary art from the Middle East, “Here and elsewhere”

Curated by Massimiliano Gioni, November 4-14, 2014, Arts Incubator, New Museum, New York, NY.

Sarah Abu Abdallah

Columbia University, New York, NY.

- Deadline and length. Reviews are due four weeks after the editor’s acceptance of the proposal, unless otherwise agreed. Your review should be between 1000-1500 words.
- Content. Your article should provide a descriptive engagement with the material under review that would help someone unfamiliar with the book, film, exhibition, or electronic work decide how they might use it in their teaching, research, activism and/or daily life. It should include a summary of the thing you are reviewing, as well as a discussion of how it engages with discourse, debate, and literature of interest to Women In Islam readers. In other words, authors should describe why your chosen work matters to the field, and how it could be used. As criticism, your review should offer your evaluation of the work, as well as a discussion of medium-specific and “off-screen” concerns where appropriate. For example, how do exhibition technologies and materials shape its narrative? How does a video’s circulation contribute to its meaning? Overall, why does this work take the form that it does?

Personal narratives and dialogues

All personal narratives and dialogue submissions must include:

- Authorship. Self-written personal narratives are authored by the narrator. Dialogues are jointly authored by the interviewer and interviewee(s). For dialogues, the interviewer should be listed as the corresponding author.
- Deadline and length. Personal narratives and dialogues are due four weeks after the editor’s acceptance of the proposal, unless otherwise agreed. Narratives and dialogues are typically between 1,500 -2,000 words in length.
- Title Page. This document should include the following:
  - Author Information: Self-written personal narratives are authored by the narrator. Dialogues are jointly-authored by the interviewer and interviewee(s). The interviewer should be listed as the corresponding author. Include all author’s names, affiliations, and emails. Identify the corresponding author with an asterisk (*).
  - Title: We encourage authors to include important keywords (ideally within the first 65 characters) and to keep titles short.
  - Abstract: (<100 words) Describe the focus of the conversation using essential keywords in the first two sentences. Avoid parenthetical citations in your abstract.
  - Author Bio: (<50 words) If including current institutional affiliation, education, positions held, and/or relevant publications, please describe in narrative form.

- Narrative/dialogue submission. (1,500-2,000 words, including footnotes and references following The Chicago Manual of Style). Narratives and dialogues are pedagogically-oriented, collaboratively authored (if a dialogue) work that may combine a traditional review of either a film, curatorial project/exhibition, book, program, etc., with an engaged conversation between the filmmaker, author, curator, or creator (narrator/interviewees) and fellow scholar (interviewer). Narratives and dialogues should begin with a strong introduction that provides a clear context and history to the work or media being discussed and/or to the narrator/interviewee. Authors are encouraged to provide references to existing literature, media, and practices. The dialogic portions are jointly authored because the interviewer and interviewee undertake a process-focused conversation which contextualized personal experiences within the history and contemporary experiences of persons of interest to Women In Islam.

All references should appear as sequential, numerical footnotes at the end of the same page in which the reference is cited. The citation style should follow The Chicago Manual of Style 'Notes' (for entries upon first use) and 'Shortened notes' (for all subsequent entries after first use).

Photo essays, pictorial works, drawings or graphic narratives

All photo essays (and other forms of visual media) submissions must include:

- Title Page. This document should include the following:
  - Author Information: Include your name, affiliation, and email. In the case of multiple authors, be sure to identify who the corresponding author will be by using an asterisk (*).
  - Title: We encourage authors to include important keywords (ideally within the first 65 characters) and to keep titles short.
  - Abstract: (<100 words) Describe essential findings and keywords in the first two sentences. Avoid parenthetical citations in your abstract.
  - Author Bio: (<50 words) If including current institutional affiliation, education, positions held, and/or relevant publications, please describe in narrative form.
- Proposed layout. (6–10 images). Sketch how you would like your submission to appear in print, including both image and caption placement, and if you would prefer to have your accompanying text run before, after, or alongside the images. Women In Islam is able to print full-bleed images and to print in colour.
- Image files. Attach each image as separate "Figure" files. Label each with the figure number that corresponds to the caption list and text (e.g., Figure 1, Figure 2). These images must be at least 300 dpi and in .jpg or .tiff format.
- Caption list and alternative text. Upload a complete caption list as a separate word document when submitting your essay. Ensure that the captions match each figure exactly. Include image credits in your captions. In addition to captions, authors are responsible for providing alternative text for all figures. Alternative text describes the content of the image, in less than 125 characters, for individuals unable to view the image. Captions and alternative text should follow this format:
  - FIGURE #. Name of Maker, Title, Location (City), Location (Country), YEAR. Photo by First NAME Last NAME. [Alternative text: 125 character description]. Example: Figure 3. Zanele Muholi, Female performers in the Horn of Africa, Mogadishu, Somalia, 1935. Photo by SHAMIS ABOKAR. [Somali woman standing on stage in white costume, smiling, waiting to perform].

Poetry, and creative nonfiction

All poetry and other works nonfiction submissions must include:

- Title Page. This document should include the following:
  - Author Information: Include your name, affiliation, and email. In the case of multiple authors, be sure to identify who the corresponding author will be by using an asterisk (*).
  - Title: We encourage authors to include important keywords (ideally within the first 65 characters) and to keep titles short.
  - Abstract: (<100 words) Describe essential findings and keywords in the first two sentences. Avoid parenthetical citations in your abstract.
  - Author Bio: (<50 words) If including current institutional affiliation, education, positions held, and/or relevant publications, please describe in narrative form.

- Poetry/fiction/nonfiction submission. (Less than 500-1,500 words). Poetry submissions in this category are usually less than 500 words, and nonfiction submissions are typically between 1,000-1,500 words in length.